Judgment is a term we rarely associate with freedom. Yet Deborah’s wise judgment and guidance of the unfaithful Israelites ultimately enabled them to be freed from their oppressors. In Matthew’s parable of the talents, the master has harsh judgment for the slave who horded his coin rather than risk investment and growth. Sometimes judgment calls us to honest reflection and frees us to be a people who take risks for the growth and flourishing of the kingdom.
The congregation is asked to remain silent during the prelude as a time of prayer and meditation.

THANKSGIVING AND COMMUNION
This morning we give thanks for the Department of Physics. We celebrate its study of matter, energy, space, and time, which informs our understanding of the universe and affects many dimensions of our common life. The ushers bring the Greek letter rho, which in Physics symbolizes density, to the altar.

In Durham, we lift up those developing innovative practices for environmentally friendly building and energy sustainability. The ushers bring forward a compact fluorescent lightbulb.

Sharing of the Bread and Wine
All those who have become members of Christ’s body through baptism and seek to be united with God and at peace with their neighbor are invited to receive communion. Wine is used for communion. The tradition as understood at Duke Chapel is that the Holy Spirit makes Christ fully present in both the bread and the wine. If you receive only the bread, be assured that you are nonetheless in full communion with Christ and the Church.

If you would like to receive individual anointing with oil and prayers for healing, ministers will be in the Memorial Chapel during communion.

ABOUT TODAY’S GUEST PREACHER

This morning we welcome the Rev. Dr. Stephen Chapman as our guest preacher. Stephen B. Chapman is Associate Professor of Old Testament at Duke Divinity School, a member of the Congregation at Duke Chapel, and an ordained American Baptist minister. He is also an affiliate faculty member with the Duke Center for Jewish Studies. His academic work investigates the challenges involved in reading the Old Testament as Scripture, and his latest book explores 1 Samuel as a literary site for Christian theological reflection. He recently completed two terms in the Faculty-in-Residence Program, being named “Faculty-in-Residence of the Year” in 2005-06. To students, he is affectionately known as “Chaps.”
