

DUKE
UNIVERSITY
CHAPEL

Service of Worship

Fourth Sunday after the Epiphany

January 28, 2007

Eleven o'clock in the Morning

≈ Keeping the heart of the University listening to the heart of God ≈

"Pilate Washing His Hands" by He Qi, www.heqiarts.com. Used with permission.

This morning we have two scripture passages. The first lesson, from 1 Corinthians, is one of the most well-known segments within Christian scripture, often read at weddings because of its emphasis on love. While this passage is appropriate for marriage, the author was speaking more broadly to the whole Corinthian community to stress the importance of weaving love into the fabric of communal life and interaction. The Gospel lesson, from Matthew, tells of Jesus' appearance before the crowd who cried out for his crucifixion, after which Pilate washed his hands of the incident. This lesson describing the hatred of the mob provides a stark contrast to the community of love envisioned within the Corinthian church.

DUKE UNIVERSITY CHAPEL

Duke Chapel is a grand building, suitable for hosting major events in the life of the University and its members; it acts as a moderator for the diversity of religious identity and expression on campus; and it is a Christian church of an unusually interdenominational character, with a tradition of stirring music, preaching, and liturgy. We welcome you to our life of worship, learning, dialogue, and service.

THANKSGIVING AND COMMUNION

This morning we give thanks for the Department of African and African-American studies. The department's mission is to bring to life the history and culture, the social and economic issues, and the political institutions and processes that have shaped the experiences of people of African ancestry, and, in so doing, increase understanding of the wisdom and culture rooted in diverse traditions. Ushers bring a book of hymns from the African-American tradition to the altar.

SHARING OF THE BREAD AND WINE

All those who have become members of Christ's body through baptism and seek to be united with God and at peace with their neighbor are invited to receive communion. Wine is used for communion. The tradition as understood at Duke Chapel is that the Holy Spirit makes Christ fully present in both the bread and the wine. If you receive only the bread, be assured that you are nonetheless in full communion with Christ and the Church.

WHAT'S MISSING?

The Chapel's beloved Aeolian organ is on an 18-month leave of absence from Duke Chapel after nearly 75 years of continuous service. The organ was played for its final worship service on Sunday, January 21, before being dismantled for restoration. During the next 18 months, the organ will be in the hands of Foley-Baker, Inc., the company carrying out the restoration and seeing that every component of the organ is cleaned, renewed, or rebuilt as needed to ensure the organ's continuous service in the next 75 years. We are thankful to all those who have contributed toward the Aeolian Organ Project, and we invite your prayers for the staff of Foley-Baker, as well as for members of our Chapel Music staff as they cope with the Aeolian's absence over the next 18 months.

GOODBYE TO JOSH HUBERT

The Rev. Josh Hubert has served as the Associate Pastor for Youth and Missions for the Congregation at Duke Chapel since August 2005. Josh has been a beloved pastor to the youth, has helped expand the Congregation's mission work in Durham and beyond, and assumed pastoral leadership of the Congregation for ten weeks last summer during Nancy Ferree-Clark's sabbatical. He has also raised the visibility of the Congregation among Duke students and has successfully engaged many of them in its ministries. Josh is leaving to pursue full-time graduate study at Duke Divinity School, and today is his last Sunday as Associate Pastor to the Congregation. He has been a gift to both the Congregation and Chapel community and we are grateful to God for his faithful service.
